

BuiltWorlds

User experience, information architecture, interface design

BuiltWorlds is a professional network fueling the conversation on emerging technology and new approaches in buildings and infrastructure.

I redesigned their website, housing all their content on a single database, eliminating inconsistencies and the need for constant data migration. I also designed the initial prototypes for their member portal.